

Amending the Oregon Constitution with one sentence: "... the right to carry, without a permit, a concealed firearm."

Constitutional Carry for Oregon (CCFO), otherwise known as IP-21, was conceived and is led by a group of grassroots volunteers who came together with the desire to reassert our constitutional rights and make Oregon a freer, safer state. Our effort isn't managed, funded by, or connected to any organized group other than the one we've just created. Our goal: turn Oregon into America's next constitutional carry state in the 2024 November election.

WHY CONSTITUTIONAL CARRY?

Constitutional carry takes the right to keep and bear arms and returns it to the status of a right. If you need a permit to carry a gun, it's a privilege.

Constitutional carry reduces bureaucracy and paperwork by trimming out the burden currently needed for processing concealed carry permits.

Constitutional carry makes it possible for hardworking, low-income families to protect themselves without undue financial burden.

Concealed carry laws have never stopped a criminal from carrying without a license! Concealed carry can prevent law-abiding citizens from carrying a firearm.

Early gun control laws, starting in the 1800s and continuing into recent decades, were specifically designed to prevent minorities and the poor from carrying a firearm and having the ability to protect themselves. Permitless carry helps assure equality when it comes to exercising 2A rights.

But what about the loss of training? you might ask. In Oregon, people own firearms and open carry without government-induced training anyway! There is no added danger in not having the concealed carry process. States that abandoned public training have found that people then generally seek more training voluntarily.

Violent crime actually drops within five years of a state passing constitutional carry, and the number of victims in crimes like mass shootings decreases.

Vermont has never required a license to carry, and it's ranked as one of the safest states. In 2019, four of the top five safest US states (Maine, Vermont, NH and ID) never required a license to carry.

27 states are currently constitutional carry states. With other states ahead of us in the process, Oregon is aiming to be number 28 or 29!
